2007 Distribution of CFEC Permits and Vessel Licenses by State

CFEC Report 08-2N

February 2008

Prepared by Nancy Free-Sloan and Cathy Tide

Abstract:

This report contains counts of Alaska Commercial Fisheries Entry Commission (CFEC) permit holders and vessel owners by state of the permit holder or vessel owner. As of year-end 2007, CFEC permits were held by persons from every state except West Virginia and the District of Columbia. During 2007, vessel licenses were issued to vessel owners from forty U.S. states. Data show that the vast majority of permit holders and vessel owners are from Alaska.

Background and Overview

In Alaska, a limited entry or interim-use permit entitles the holder to operate gear in a specific commercial fishery in accordance with Board of Fish regulations. The term 'fishery' refers to a unique combination of fishery resource(s), gear type(s) and area(s). Permits for some fishery species are issued on a statewide basis, while others are valid only for certain areas in the state.

Permanent permits and interim-entry permits are issued in Alaska's limited fisheries. Permanent permits are held by persons who originally qualified under state regulations for a limited entry permit and are also held by persons who received a limited entry permit through transfer (i.e. purchase, trade, gift, inheritance). Permanent permits are issued once in limited fisheries and need to be renewed every year thereafter. Interim-entry permits are issued yearly to people who have applications pending for permanent permits in limited fisheries.

Fisheries that are not subject to the state's limited entry program are classified as unlimited or 'open access' fisheries. Permits issued in unlimited fisheries are called interim-use permits. They are issued anew each year.

The tables included in this report contain combined year-end counts of limited entry and interim-entry permits that have been issued and renewed in Alaska's limited commercial fisheries, as well as counts of interim-use permits that have been issued in Alaska's unlimited commercial fisheries. Counts of experimental, test fishing, educational, reservation and hatchery permits are excluded from the tables.

Commercial vessel licenses are required for any vessel, boat, ship or other craft which is used for commercial fishing or for aiding or assisting in the performance of any activity related to commercial fishing (including refrigeration, transportation and processing). Vessels can be used for more than one activity and can use multiple gear types. The tables in this report reflect unique vessel counts by state.

Information as to state of residence has been provided by the 2007 year-end permit holders and vessel owners. It should be noted that a small number of permit holders and vessel owners are listed with foreign addresses. These people have been combined together under the category 'non-US'.

Four tables and two figures have been produced for this report:

- (1) Table 1 lists the number of permits issued by state of the permit holder. Figure 1 provides a graphical presentation of the geographic summary data in Table 1.
- (2) Table 2 lists the number of vessels licensed in the Alaska commercial fishing industry by state of the vessel owner. Figure 2 provides a graphical presentation of the geographic summary data in Table 2.
- (3) Table 3 is a summary report, combining permits issued and vessels licensed by state of the permit holder and vessel owner.
- (4) Table 4 lists the number of permits issued by state of the permit holder and permit fishery. Recall that the term 'fishery' refers to a unique combination of fishery resource(s), gear type(s) and area(s).

The tables in this report show that the number of permits issued in 2007 is greater than the number of unique permit holders. The tables also show that the number of vessels commercially licensed in 2007 is also greater than the number of unique vessel owners. Individual permit holders can and frequently do hold permits in multiple Alaska commercial fisheries each year. As with permit holders, a number of vessel owners commercially license multiple vessels each year.
